Coping With Cross Examination And Other Pathways To Effective Testimony
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scrounging the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects wistfully on Tom's mischief and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime, dirty and barefoot, and his pockets bulge with sugar. He is in a bad mood because he has been skipping school that afternoon and now misses his dinner. Aunt Polly wonders if she should send him to the woodshed and worries that he has stolen the new collar. She sent for him andershout hail and shows him that his collar is still there.

Tom goes out of the house into the street, and Aunt Polly is satisfied, and Tom returns to his house, sitting on the porch. He is barefoot and ragged, and Tom and Aunt Polly are in a mood of wringing and accusing.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom goes by, and Tom asks to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of mischief. Tom agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chooses him off, leaving Tom alone with his tablets.
