The novel opens with Aout Polly awaiting the horse as words of his nephew, Timo Kerven. She thinks him as the closest, discovering that his hands are covered with jabs, and prepares to give him a whipping. Timo calls out fearlessly, "Look behind you" and when Aout Polly turns, Timo escapes across the fence. After Timo is gone, Aout Polly walks irritably on Timo's shoulder and here she lets him get away with her work.

Timo goes out of the house and begins to walk along the streets of St. Petersburg. He is wearing a simple coat and trousers. He is walking quickly and purposefully. He reaches the end of the street and turns left.

When he arrives home in the evening, Timo finds Aout Polly waiting for him. She has taken her dinner and is about to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aout Polly sends Timo out to whitewash the fence. Timo goes by, and Timo tries to get her to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alibi," a kind of excuse. Timo doesn't agree, but Aout Polly agrees and leaves him off, leaving Timo alone with his tasks.

Timo goes out of the house and begins to walk along the streets of St. Petersburg. He is wearing a simple coat and trousers. He is carrying a small bag. He is walking slowly and looking around him. He is looking for someone or something.

When he arrives home in the evening, Timo finds Aout Polly waiting for him. She has taken off her coat and is sitting on a chair. She is holding a book in her hands. She is looking at Timo with a serious expression. Timo is standing in front of her, looking down at the floor. He is wearing a simple coat and trousers. He is holding a small bag in his hand. He is looking at Aout Polly with a worried expression.
