

Ma Mento De Phona Tique Anglaise Avec Exercices Corrigés

The next day, with Aunt Polly watching the house as a result of her neighbor, Mrs. Gervay, she finds Tom in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with pins, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom calls out fearlessly, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly walks outside on Tom's shoulder and tells the little boys get away with her work.

Tom comes home at night, exhausted from his day's work. During supper, Aunt Polly asks him what he did all day, and when he replies that he didn't do much, she asks him if he didn't go swimming. Tom replies that he did, but that he had to stop because he was afraid of getting into trouble. Aunt Polly asks him if he got into trouble, and when he says no, she asks him if he got into trouble with his mother. Tom replies that he did, but that he got away with it.

Tom goes out of the house again, this time to walk along the streets of St. Petersburg. He meets a man who is selling fish, and when Tom asks him for some, the man says that Tom must pay for them. Tom and the man agreed on a price, and the man gives Tom the fish. Tom then walks back home, where he finds his mother waiting for him. She asks him if he got into trouble, and when he says yes, she asks him if he got into trouble with his mother. Tom replies that he did, but that he got away with it.

When the census taker is in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She asks him if he did any work, and when he replies that he did, she asks him if he got into trouble. Tom replies that he did, but that he got away with it.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom pretends to paint the fence, but when he is asked to do more of the whitewashing, he offers him a "white alibi," a kind of excuse. Tom doesn't offer, but Aunt Polly agrees and leaves him off, leaving Tom alone with the fence.

Tom comes home at night, having been absent all day. During most of Aunt Polly's absence, he has been playing with his friends and was not noticed. The collar is still very bright, however, and when Tom's mother asks him about his clothes, he says he has been playing with his friends and has not had time to wash them. Tom's mother is angry and sends him to bed without supper.

Tom goes out of the house during the night, walking along the streets of St. Petersburg. He meets a boy named Tom and the two travel on foot through the city. They eventually come across a shop where Tom buys a new collar.

When he comes home in the morning, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She scolds him for dirty clothes and makes him go to bed again. Tom's mother is angry and sends him to bed without supper.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom pretends to paint the fence to get Tom to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white collar," a kind of marble. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and drives him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
