The novel opens with Aunt Polly scolding the boys in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with pins, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out fearlessly, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects warmly on Tom's conduct and how she lets him get away with too much.

This goes out of the lower box, along the bottom of the D-shaped cutout. This and the next several rows are chosen for convenience all the way down.

The next evening Aunt Polly arrives for dinner as a result of her nephew Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with paint, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom calls out fearlessly, "Look behind you" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's conduct and how she has been taken in by her own son.

Tom comes home at night, dressed in a uniform and carrying a rifle. During supper Aunt Polly asks him where he got the uniform and rifle. Tom replies that he got the uniform from his mother and the rifle from his father. Tom's half brother, Jim, asks Tom if he has been to school. Tom replies that he has not been to school because he has been sent to the penitentiary.

Tom goes out of the house during the night and walks along the streets of St. Petersburg. He meets his old friend, Tom and the two go to the riverbank and eventually choose the narrowest of the many banks.

When he arrives home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She scolds him for getting dressed and decides to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom pretends to paint the fence to get Tom to do some of the whitewashing so others like a "white alibi," a kind of excuse. Tom almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and drives him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
